File 5 Magical London

A Bell Named Ben, p. 77

At rest inside the golden tower, a giant bell awaits the hour.

Tick-TOCK, tick-TOCK. The clock marks time.

Ding-DONG, ding-DONG. The small bells chime<sup>1</sup>.

Then, at the hour, a hammer<sup>2</sup> pounds<sup>3</sup>.

The bell lets loose with wondrous sounds that ring and echo, loud and long.

The song of Big Ben –

BONNNG!

BONNNG!

BONNNG!

An extraordinary nanny – Doc 1, p. 78

The book follows the fantastical adventures of a magical nanny named Mary Poppins who arrives on the doorstep of the Banks family in London. Mary is not your ordinary nanny. With her magical powers, she can slide up banisters<sup>1</sup>, talk to animals, and even fly with an umbrella. She takes the Banks children, Jane and Michael, on extraordinary adventures.

A surprising kid – Doc 2, p. 79

“Come with me! [...]”

“Oh, I can’t come with you,” says Wendy. “I can’t fly.”

“I can teach you to fly,” says Peter. “It’s very easy.”

“Can you teach John and Michael to fly, too?” asks Wendy.

“Of course!” says Peter.

Wendy goes to John and Michael and says, “Wake up! Quickly! Peter Pan is here.

He’s from Neverland. It’s a fun place!”

John and Michael wake up, and they are very surprised.

“We can go to Neverland with him,” says Wendy.

“But we must learn to fly.”

A tour in Kensington Gardens – Doc 1, p. 82

Fly away to London with Peter Pan

Where is the Mary Poppins Statue?

The remarkable statue of Mary Poppins is situated in the home of film at London Leicester Square near Piccadilly Circus. You can find the bronze statue of her with her umbrella and carpetbag<sup>1</sup> among the flower beds next door to the Lego store opposite Leicester Street.

Évaluation – Guide pédagogique

Peter Pan vs Captain Hook

As we all know, Neverland is a magical place where you never grow up and you play with fairies and hang out<sup>1</sup> with mermaids<sup>2</sup>. However, for Hook it's not so magical, since<sup>3</sup> he and his pirates are some of the only people there that (don't have the ability to) can't fly. Obviously since Peter can fly, he has an advantage over him. (...) Peter is the hero of the movie, the one everyone looks up to<sup>4</sup> and wants to be with, (...) he is a boy who doesn't want to grow up.
